授業のねらい/授業方法(学習指導法)/授業到達目標 授業のねらい: This course is designed to improve students' proficiency in listening and speaking English. Each unit presents essential language and appropriate structures necessary for communicating within the scope of a given theme and function. The listening component includes both pronunciation and comprehension activities. The speaking component moves students from practicing language patterns towards expressing their personal experiences, ideas, and opinions. 授業方法: Students will be acquainted with the target language by completing written activities before working on the oral tasks. Audiovisual materials will provide listening practice, present language function in appropriate context, and prompt students' responses. Various activities including the use of drills, role play, information gap etc. will be incorporated to encourage students to communicate with one another. Self-study tasks focusing on the language structures and functions practiced in class will be assigned to develop fluency. 授業到達目標: By the end of the course, students would be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - demonstrate their understanding of dialogues and monologues presenting the target functions within the range of the themes covered by completing required activities; - express themselves by using correct language functions in different situations; - give a short presentation concerning a topic covered in class.
